

Adele Miller

August 11, 1913 - July 29, 2018

Adele Miller (Solomon) was born in Brooklyn, New York on August 11, 2013. She died peacefully in her sleep at a retirement home just short of her 105th birthday. Her family moved to Los Angeles, California where she grew up and lived until moving to Houston after the death of her husband, Irving, in 1986.

Before marriage Adele worked for the City of Los Angeles. After marriage she was active with Hadassah and served as an officer for that organization.

She is survived by two sons, Michael H. Miller, of Los Angeles and Norman C. Miller, now living in Jacksonville, Oregon, four grandchildren: Erin, Allison, Carrie and Jennifer, two great grandchildren, and nieces and nephews.

Tribute Wall

GP

“ I will always treasure the last 5 years or so of weekly phone calls with Del, my Mother's high school friend of 80 years. Del's thoughts and ideas, especially politics gave me hope and happiness. We would conclude our conversation with the following.... ABI GEZINT...Which means...."As long as you're healthy you can be happy".

Gordon Potik

Gordon Potik - August 01, 2018 at 11:06 PM